Let's Stamp out slow play!!

18 holes of golf shouldn't take more than 4 ½ hours—here are some rules to live by when you tee it up for your next round:

- Select the correct set of tees for your experience level.
- Begin preparing for your shot as you approach your ball, and commit to the shot you decide to play.
- Watch your shot until it lands, making a mental note of line and distance with reference points.
- Pay attention to the other members of your group when they are hitting so you can help locate their ball.
- Limit your search for lost balls to a minute or two—and have a spare ball in your pocket.
- If you are in a bunker, grab the rake while you are waiting to hit.
- Once you're on the green, begin lining up your putt as other players are making their putts.
- Mark your score when you arrive at the next set of tees, not while you're standing on the green.
- Play Ready Golf (meaning, in the order of who is ready-- not who is away.)
- Never allow a hole ahead to open up.
- Be mindful of the players behind, and allow faster groups to play through.
- Swing tips are great, but save lessons for the Driving Range.
